

BOREAS PONDS AND THE HIGH PEAKS WILDERNESS PERFECT TOGETHER . . .

New York State is not only where wilderness preservation began in America, but where wilderness can still be added in America during 2016.

By acquiring these stunning, majestic headwaters of the Boreas River, New York can complete the High Peaks and Dix Wilderness areas, the largest in the Northeast and one of the largest in the Lower 48. In fact, at over 260,000 acres, an expanded High Peaks/Dix Wilderness would be globally significant.

Ask Governor Cuomo to Extend the Wild. Ask him to acquire and treat Boreas Ponds as a wilderness to benefit Park residents, visitors, wildlife and youth of distant tomorrows.
